E-government is government not technology. This book presents the Korean experience and strategies in driving e-government initiatives, lessons, and policy issues for the future direction of e-government implementation. The author, Kuk-Hwan Jeong, was responsible for vision, strategy, direction, and oversight for e-government as Director General in charge of e-government initiatives in Korea. Dr. Jeong tells real story of Korean e-government initiatives. He played a leading role in enacting the E-government Law and managing the e-government initiatives. In his 5 years tenure, he planned and practiced the whole e-government project. He was the frontier, planner, architect, captain of Korean e-government.
